A Statement from the Members of Wiesenfeuer

You may have heard about us from a friend, found us on a web search, saw our displays and demos at the Norman Medieval Fair or any number of local events or schools. Regardless of how you've found us, we're glad you did. The Barony of Wiesenfeuer is part of an organization called the Society for Creative Anachronism (SCA). It's an international organization dedicated to the researching and recreating the arts and skills of pre-17th century Europe. The "arts and skills" of Europe, and any people that Europeans had contact with, are far reaching in scope and depth. Arts include everything from making soap or butter, to making of instruments, woodworking, ... the list goes on. Anything that was made or done in the Middle Ages or Renaissance is fair game. Skills would include fighting, fencing, archery, thrown weapons, and all manner of games and talents played and practiced in six hundred years of history.

The SCA is a hands-on participation based way to learn about history. Hit your (armored) friends with rattan sticks, fence like a musketeer or pirate, or learn to shoot a bow like Robin Hood. Learn any number of arts and crafts from people that have developed skills and techniques for making and doing things the way they were centuries ago.

Beyond the competitions and projects, the royalty and ceremonies, the SCA is all about having fun. The Society is a great place to meet people with similar interests, make new friends, and be involved. So come out to an event, go to a meeting, or contact our hospitler at <http://wiesenfeuer.ansteorra.org>.

Welcome to Wiesenfeuer!!

Message from the Baronesses:

Thank you to all those who came out to support Myrgenfeld's Metalworking Collegium. We hope everyone had as much of a blast as we did watching the Baronial competitions. Congratulations to those who were awarded and we hope to see everyone at King's College next weekend.

Yours in Service,
Deirdre and Valia
Baronesses Wiesenfeuer
Ladies of Haldtre and Myrgenfeld

Message from the Seneschal:

Greetings Wiesenfeuer.

We have two weekends of classes coming up. Myrgenfeld Metalworking Collegium will offer various classes designed to teach various forms of metalworking. College has such a large variety of classes that there is no way to list them all in this post. So, if you want to learn something new... this will be a great opportunity. Go out, learn, gain in your awesomeness.

If you are interested in learning more about one of the various offices we have in the Barony, now is a great time as many of our officers are looking for deputies. Find an area that interests you and talk to the officer in charge.

We have other events coming up. Feel free to check out our website, or the kingdom events page for more information. As many have noticed the summer sun has begun show great warmth for our great Barony and other groups around us. Make sure that you drink plenty of water and try to stay cool. er Whatever you do, be safe, have fun... be awesome.

Long Live the Dream,
HE Aldric de Kerr, IoM, CSS

Meetings and Events Continued

Youth Combat<sup>3</sup>

Date: Wednesdays Time: 7pm - 8pm

Place: Sellers Community Center 3 Youth combat is for boys and girls are 6 to 15 years. They fight with foam-padded weapons. There are 3 age divisions within the program; 6-9 years, 10-12 years, and 13-15 years. The armor requirements and the strength of blows allowed increase as a child progresses through the levels.

Beginning Equipment for Youth Combat:

Each new youth fighter should wear long pants, a long-sleeve shirt, closed-toe shoes, lightweight gloves, and groin protection. A parent or an adult designated by the parent needs to be present throughout the practice.

There is some loaner armor but anything you can provide yourself is helpful. Armor requirements vary by age but all ages will need a helmet with face guard (such as a hockey or lacrosse helmet) and a gorget (medium-weight leather with ½ inch closed-cell padding). Knee and elbow pads are required for the older kids and helpful for the younger. The full armor and weapon requirements and rules for combat may be found in the Complete Participants Handbook. This is available on the Kingdom Earl Marshal's website at <http://marshal.ansteorra.org/armored>. Of course feel free to contact your friendly local marshal with any questions!

The Scrolls of Time: Chapter 6

When Yendel awoke from his nap every muscle in his tortured body screamed in protest from the day's acrobatics. As he stood Yendel took one final look back and noticed for the first time how far he had come from everything he had ever known. A gentle fear crept up Yendel's back and rested its delicate hands upon his shoulders. It did not matter what trial lay behind him at that moment, nothing could compare to the beckoning phantoms that tried so desperately at that moment to call him home. Yendel stood paralyzed in conflict, he closed his eyes but it did nothing to block the visions of family and friends pulling him ever closer to the edge of the path. When suddenly all was replaced by shadow and frozen dread. Yendel's eyes opened wide as the dying ghosts screams washed over him like a foul and violent wind breaking the spell of fear and guilt. Yendel stood defiant against the spire of Halthor's Keep and vowed that never again would this wretched shadow of death hold sway over his heart, Yendel would pay for Halthor's sins no more. Yendel turned to face the test of the ladder, determined to never look upon the luckless lands again, and as the last of the screams and blasts of wind tore at his back, Yendel would never see the massive spire that held Halthor's Keep crumble, and that the true test had been passed. All he had to do now was climb.

Halthor's Ladder was a massive climb of natural rock ledges that even the hardest of people could not climb without fear of exhaustion, and given the stones smooth texture finding a hold in the rock was next to impossible. Yendel tried to hook the first stone ledge with his rake. The rake reached the ledge by alas could not hope to support the weight of a climber, and on the first attempt the end snapped off sending Yendel seat first crashing to the ground. Yendel stood for a moment lamenting his bruised backside until the sharp thud of a stone on top of his head helped to redirect the pain elsewhere.

Yendel looked up to meet the hovering Tunarian's hateful glare, and to Yendel's horror he realized that this was no ordinary Tunarian he faced. The form hovered in midair as deftly as if where on the ground. The figure was that of a.....

...Harlequin in black and silver, and it wore upon its face a golden mask with ruby eyes, and frozen upon its visage was a hideous laugh bordering between joyous and madness and the darkest rage. Yendel recognized it instantly as an Inoper'Tunarian, the most malevolent of the marauding minstrels, and guaranteed to show up at the worst times. Yendel feared that narrative flashbacks would not be enough to save him this time. The fiend had come to avenge his fallen comrade, and would not be reasoned with. In a desperate attempt Yendel hurled the broken shaft of his rake at the foe. The makeshift spear screamed true to its mark, but with an almost mocking display of agility the Inoper'Tunarian slapped the missile from the air splitting it in two. Soon Yendel found himself dodging an onslaught of stones and blades. With nowhere to run and weaponless, Yendel's hope was at an end.

Suddenly Yendel remembered the buttons he had retrieved from the discarded Tunarian cottehardie. Yendel took a heavy button from his pocket and in a desperate sand hurled it at his relentless attacker. The button sailed towards its target with a strange accuracy, and just before reaching its target Yendel watched in amazement as the button exploded covering the floating fiend in a thick sticky mass. The Tunarian let out a sustained operatic shriek as it plummeted to its death.

Carefully, Yendel examined the body. He found that the substance was thick sugary syrup and it was sticky! Very sticky! After retrieving a small sack of coins and one of the curious looking daggers Yendel looked at the Giant ladder and smiled, freedom was now at hand.

One by one, Yendel hurled the magic buttons at the stone wall, and one by one they exploded covering the wall in the sticky glue. By the time Yendel neared the top he had exhausted all by one of the buttons and all his strength. Using the last button Yendel summoned the last of his will to pull himself over the edge then collapsed into exhaustion....

Yendel awoke to a cool fresh breeze rolling over his body like a blanket. The smell of lush sweet grass and all things green filled his nose. Yendel lifted his head to witness a land of rolling green fields and willows swaying in the wind. But Yendel saw only one thing in the moment, something he had never seen before that reflected in the tears that covered his face.....the setting sun.

Scholar's Note

Ramhar Breadoir cites the first account on Inoper'Tunarians from the Book of Bad Tidings—most noted for their unsportsman-like conduct and malicious vibrato. Aside from that, they are credited with the creation of the cheese insole and the founding of the ancient language of ironics, citing the tomes “Hooked on Ironics” and “Ironics for Dummies”.
